

Eno River Association Candidates for Board Membership, starting in January 2024

Name: Kendall Glaze
City: Durham
Age: 35-49
Race/Ethnicity: White
Pronouns: She/Her

Kendall Glaze is a resident of Durham and Partner at BuildSense, a custom design-build firm with a purpose to foster delightful, healthy and sustainable living. Originally from Alabama, Kendall attended Appalachian State and received her BS in Sustainable Development. After graduating, Kendall moved to the Triangle to work for BuildSense (and has worked there ever since!).

Kendall is a licensed general contractor and has volunteer experience with the Home Builders Association, Meals on Wheels, and Habitat for Humanity.

Kendall has expressed interest in the Land & Stewardship Committee but is open to other roles.

From Kendall: My pup and I love to play in the Eno, especially around Sennett's Hole. After years of enjoying the water and trails, I figured it was time to do more than picking up trash on my nature excursions. I look forward to the opportunity to be around other tree-huggers to do necessary work to keep the Eno beautiful.

*Name: David Singleton
City: Durham
Age: 70+
Race/Ethnicity: White*

An Eno Board member since 2016, David is a retired attorney with LL.M. in taxation and more than forty-two years of professional income tax and business experience. David was a member of the Office of Counsel at Duke from 1987 - 2021. Post LL.M. courses (New York University Graduate School of Business): Finance, Accounting and Computer Programming. Bar Membership: North Carolina and New York.

His initial interest in the Eno was via the trash-free enterprise at the Festival. David has been a recycling fanatic most of his adult life, first establishing a community recycling center in Brooklyn, NY in the early 1990s. David volunteers each month at the Eno River Confluence, mowing the trails and grassy areas as needed. Say hello the next time you visit the Confluence!

Eno River Association Candidates for Board Membership, starting in January 2024

Name: Mars Wood
City: Durham
Age: 18-34
Race/Ethnicity: Black
Pronouns: They/He

Mars Wood is a resident of Durham and currently working towards their law degree at NC Central University. Mars's legal education has been geared towards real estate planning, working with the Land Loss Prevention Project, with a particular interest in black communities and generational wealth. Prior to attending NCCU, Mars served as Co-Executive Director at the Carolina Abortion Fund, after serving as a board member for a year. Mars has extensive nonprofit experience, including volunteer roles with the National Lawyers Guild, street medic collectives, Durham mutual aid groups, and others.

Mars has expressed interest in both the Land & Stewardship Committee and DEI/Environmental Justice. They're open to going where they're needed most.

From Mars: The Eno is one of my favorite places in Durham and has been a healing source for me. I'd like to support its safety in any way possible. I'm impressed by the board's vision of environmental justice and would love to lend my specific expertise while learning more about the work.
